

Meet Volunteers for Wildlife's Animal Ambassadors!

Join HOBAS to meet Volunteers for Wildlife's live animal ambassadors on ZOOM 7:00 pm. Wednesday, August 10, 2022.

Volunteers For Wildlife in Locust Valley NY is dedicated to the preservation of Long Island's wildlife & natural habitats through education & wildlife rehabilitation since 1982. VFW admits over 2,000 injured & orphaned wild animals to its hospital every year. In addition to rehabilitation, VFW's education staff offers its exciting program to children & adults to foster knowledge and appreciation for Long Island's wildlife. Volunteers for Wildlife's Education Center is the permanent home for 22 wildlife ambassadors with disabilities that prevent their release to the wild. These animal ambassadors are an integral part of their educational programming and help inspire the public to love and protect our native species.
